“ Elbert was a great Southern gentleman if there ever was one. I knew him well before we began working together. He spent his whole working career at Johnson Lumber Co., first with the Johnson family and the last 20 plus years with me & Terry. I remember when we bought the business we asked (begged) Elbert to please hang in there with us and luckily he did. He was the sturdy bridge between the two ownerships. The familiar face everyone knew. He always did what was asked even with the challenges of the computer age. His opinion on construction was asked by many because of his experience and honesty, his knowledge was invaluable. Since he retired, we are asked all the time How's ole Elbert doing by all the customers he called friends. Rest in Peace old friend, you ran the good race and will be missed by all.

Sincerely,

George Liles
